They are the men we are after.

Burns and United States Marshal Card were at once awakened. The officers went out of the front door. As they turned around the rear corner Evans saw Rapelje, and throwing his Winchester to his shoulder, took deliberate aim and fired. Just then Jackson stepped around and both officers opened fire on the bandits.

Evans was seen to throw up both hands and fall backwards. Then the firing became general, and Sontag returned the shots with a vengeance. Jackson went around the far end of the house to get a better place from which to shoot. As he stepped around he was shot in the left leg, between the knee and the ankle. About forty shots were exchanged, and darkness ended the battle.

When Mrs. Jauss discharked her she promptly broke several panes of glass, and it required the services of Policeman Wright to subdue her.

She told Judge Grady that she got angry because Mr. Jauss would not pay her her wages, nor would he give her time to get her clothing. This, however, was proved to be untrue, and she was fined $10. Wheel.

The wheelmen stopped and the carriage proceeded down Eighth avenue. Lee rods close to it and Pringle lashed him twice across the body with a whip. At One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street the Ecyclists appealed to Policeman Mengoni to arrest Pringle, who jumped from his carriage and struck Lee a heavy blow in the mouth, and with his brother-in-law disappeared into a saloon.
